To Whom It May Concern: Commending GreenCab

As an Environmental Sustainability Awareness & Training consultancy, it is essential that we practise what we preach. The best way to help people and whole businesses develop a mindset that prioritises protecting and preserving natural systems, is to inspire them and show them 'how'.

While more and more companies are going green, there are fewer and fewer who are doing so and still providing exceptional service and value for money. It's easy to put a green tag on a product, drive an eco-friendly car or build a green building, but it takes far greater commitment and passion to combine this with consistent professionalism and superior customer service.

For us, GreenCab achieves this. They are not just another green company; they meet and most often exceed the highest service standards we expect. Ever since they first drove off the rank, we have chosen them to provide us with the sustainable transport options we need for interventions with our clients.

People are most easily able to turn away from old habits towards more sustainable eco-friendly living, when they get to experience first-hand how it can be done.

Amiene van der Merwe and her team at GreenCab are leaders who make Sustainability a reality.

Yours faithfully,

Andrew Bennett
